Governor Waller Seeks Re-Election Option

Governor's Luncheon - A luncheon by Mississippi Governor Bill Waller drew a smile from Biloxi Mayor Jerry O'Keefe Tuesday as the governor addressed a luncheon crowd which turned out for "Mississippi's Capitol Comes To The Coast."

Gov. Bill Waller told an audience of about 700 Gulf Coast officials and civic leaders in Biloxi Tuesday that he may seek a second term in office if the State Legislature approves a statewide referendum on a two-term succession proposal and the referendum is passed by the voters of Mississippi.

Speaking before a luncheon crowd at the Broadwater Beach Hotel in the second session of his campaign to "Bring the capitol to the people," Waller said that four years was not sufficient time to get a full-scale legislative program implemented.

Waller's announcement that he would like to know that the option existed if he should decide to run for reelection came amid rather harsh words for the state's three-member Highway Commission and delays in the state's highway construction program.

Waller told guests that they lived in one of the fastest growing sections of the state. "In the past few weeks," he said, "We have participated in just two announcements that can mean over $300 million in new industrial investment here on the Mississippi Gulf Coast."

Waller said that the growth and future potential of the state could be all in vain though unless officials solve one major problem.

With that Waller unleashed a stringent verbal attack upon highway construction delays and the state Highway Commission - as he cited reports predicting that Interstate 10 won't be completed across South Mississippi until 1981 and I-10 connecting US Hwy 90 in Biloxi with I-10 until 1980.

"I frankly am not satisfied and I believe the people of the Mississippi Gulf Coast are not satisfied with this lack of highway construction," Waller said.

"I do not believe that they will be satisfied with highways they are paying for in this decade to be built in the next decade."

Waller said that he was recommending as part of his legislative program that action be taken immediately to modernize the state's highway commission system.

"I believe this is imperative if we are to enjoy the economic progress that this next decade promises," the governor said.

Waller also cited a reduction in federal funding for Mississippi highway construction as part of the problem. Under the federal-aid highway act of 1973, Waller said that the state's allocation for interstate highway construction as part of the problem.

Under the federal-aid highway act of 1973, Waller said that the state's allocation for interstate highway construction was being decreased from $26 million in fiscal year 1973 to $22.1 million for fiscal year 1974.

The governor was accompanied by more than 30 state officials in his coast visit, including Lt. Gov. William Winter, Attorney General A.F. Sumner, Secretary of State Heber Ladner and others.

The governor and state officials participated in three sessions as part of the "Mississippi's Capitol Moves to the Coast" program. Two sessions at Biloxi High School included questions from students who came from several Gulf Coast schools to attend the meeting. Students posed questions to the officials ranging from why the state requires liability insurance to the fuel shortage.

A Mini Conference on Education covered such issues as compulsory education, kindergarten, human relations, public school finance and teacher evaluation. Guest speakers included Glenn Endris, state representative from Harrison County; Ms. Merle Ivy, Pascagoula teacher; W.L. Rigby, superintendent of Gulfport schools; and Dr. Marice Braun, chairman Department of English at the Univ. of Southern Mississippi.

MTF Out Of Space Shuttle Race

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) has selected Thiokol Chemical Corporation of Brigham City, Utah, for the negotiation of a contract for the design, development, test and evaluation of the solid rocket motors for the space shuttle.

The contractor's proposed cost is $106 million. The agency plans to give a cost-plus award fee contract for the development phase of the project which will include fabrication of ground test and development flight motors. The six-year contract will run through 1979.

Thiokol's Wasatch Division, Lampo Junction, Utah, will do the work. This element of the shuttle project will be managed by the Marshall Space Flight Center and will support space shuttle orbital flights beginning in 1979.

Three other firms submitted proposals for the work. They were Aerojet Solid Propulsion Co., Sacramento, Calif.; Lockheed Propulsion Co., Redlands, Calif. and United Aircraft Corp., United Technology Center, Sunnyvale, Calif. The contract was awarded to Thiokol by NASA in connection with this procurement calls for an initial production quantity of solid rocket motors to be negotiated with Thiokol at a later date. It is anticipated that a follow-up contract for the major engine production will be separately competed.

NASA was given approval to proceed with development of the space shuttle by President Richard Nixon in January 1972. Development of this versatile new space transportation system is designed to routinize space travel and reduce the cost of putting payloads into orbit to a fraction of present costs.

Regarding the contract award, NASA - Mississippi Test Facility Director Jackson Balch said today he is disappointed that the circumstances were such that the decision pertaining to the Space Shuttle Solid Rocket Motor development and production phases did not result in the use of the Mississippi Test Facility.

However, he hastened to say that the decision processes, like all major procurement decisions, were the result of very careful evaluations by NASA management. He noted that NASA is planning and conducting other space shuttle activities for MTF, previously announced, including the long-range testing of the new high performance liquid hydrogen engine and the space shuttle orbiter propulsion testing. In this regard, design and construction activity costing some $20 million is underway. This test activity will add some 400 persons to the MTF work force within the next year and a half or so. NASA's activities in earth resources and applications research, together with related activities on the part of other agencies resident at MTF, will continue and hopefully, grow. The present work force at MTF is approximately 1150 persons.

Bay 201 Study Is Stymied By Contract With deLaureal

Hancock County supervisors signed a contractual agreement with deLaureal Engineers Monday for the New Orleans firm to compile a master plan for a county-wide sewer system, temporarily stymieing Bay 201 in its efforts to upgrade the city's present system.

On the threshold of signing a similar contract with Burk and Associates, also of New Orleans, Bay city officials met with the county board Friday morning and again Monday in an attempt to work out some mutually beneficial solution to the waste disposal problem. Bay councilmen had reached a verbal agreement with Burk to conduct a 201 study of the city's situation, precipitated by a recent edict from the Environmental Protection Agency declaring the city's present system outdated and unacceptable by regulatory agency standards. At the Friday meeting, T. L. Jackson, Burk vice-president, told supervisors that the city study, a required preclusion to applying for federal granting, would have to include a large portion of the county as well.

Jackson's proposal was for Burk to complete an in-depth city-county study and ultimately apply for granting for both political subdivisions. Although the majority of the board appeared agreeable to considering Burk's proposal, board attorney Sam Favre explained that supervisors by motion had entered into a previous commitment with deLaureal to do the study for the county. The matter was held in abeyance until the Monday meeting, when representatives of both engineering firms could meet with city and county officials.

The Monday meeting, scheduled for 10 a.m. actually began at 9 when Williamson submitted a contract to the board for his firm to perform the county study. Over the expressed objections of supervisors Alton A. "Dolph" Kellar and James Travira, the board voted to sign deLaureal's contract.

At 10 a.m. the board room was filled with representatives of both engineering firms, Bay and Waveland city officials and Jack Different, director of the Gulf Regional Planning Commission. Different suggested that the county and two cities retain the commission as a coordinating agency to avoid a possible moratorium such as the one imposed on Harrison and Jackson counties.

Since the cities of Pass Christian and Long Beach had not been included in the moratorium, Different also suggested that they be contacted for possible inclusion in an area study. On that note, Bay Commissioners Lucien Kidd and Clarence Ladner agreed that the city would wait on further developments before signing a contract with Burk.

Waveland city attorney Lucien Gex, Jr. queried Different on what effect the proposed studies would have on Waveland as the city's sewer system is nearing completion. He was assured that Waveland would not be affected other than to ascertain from study data "where we go from here."

Pearlington Couple Wins Suit Against Power Companies

A Circuit Court jury returned a judgment of $41,867.40 last Saturday against the Coast Electric Power Association and the Mississippi Power Company in a civil suit brought by Vessie A. and Ruby D. Bradshaw of Pearlington, Miss. The 12 member jury heard testimony all week before returning a verdict in favor of the plaintiff whose suit charged that the defendants in the case were directly responsible for a fire which completely destroyed their two-story home in Oak Harbor on Feb. 18, 1972. The plaintiffs presented 17 witnesses in the six days of testimony while defense attorneys for the two defendants presented one witness each.

The Bradshaws charged that the defendants deliberately and with full knowledge operated at less than full power on the date in question after a power failure instead of shutting power off completely. The suit charged that as a result a fire hazard was created in the central air conditioning system of their home that resulted in the blaze.

Both defendants in the case made a motion for a new trial after the jury returned its verdict. In the double barril motion, the defendants asked that Judge Floyd Logan set aside the verdict of the jury and return a verdict favorable to the defendants, and also petitioned for a new trial.

The defendants are given 30 days to file briefs in support of their motions.

Hitchhiker Killed On Hwy 90

A 25-year-old Florida man was struck by an automobile and killed Sunday night as he was hitchhiking on Highway 90 West.

State Highway Safety Patrolmen Hershel Ladner and R. J. Thompson, investigating officers, said that James William Morris, 25, of Coral Gables, Fla. was fatally injured after being struck by a car driven by Linda Ruth Merrifield, 33, of Piquette. The accident occurred west of Waveland, Miss. close to the state highway department's old truck scales.

Morris was taken to Hancock General Hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival. The body was transferred to Riemann-Fahey Funeral Home where County Coroner Emile Piazza conducted an inquest.

A coroner's jury composed of Thompson, Sheriff's Deputies Leo Woods and A. J. Cuevas, Constable Terry Tartavouille and Ladner, as bailiff, ruled death by accident.

Bay St. Louis Engineering Contract In Limbo

The Bay St. Louis city council voted to hold action on signing a contract with Burk & Associates, Inc. of New Orleans Monday for the engineering firm to do a complete study for the city of sewerage collection and treatment facilities.

"In view of the happenings this morning," said councilman Clarence

Ladner referring to discussion with the county board of supervisors regarding a county-wide study, "I don't see any reason why we should be in any hurry to do this."

In meetings last week the council agreed verbally to enter into a contract with Burk contingent upon receiving funds from the federal Environmental Protection Agency for a step one grant study.

City officials were told last week by officials of the Mississippi Air and Water Pollution Control Commission in Jackson that before any grants would be forthcoming the city would have to coordinate its plans with the county as a whole.

In other action the council laid to rest a bid received by Tri State Materials, Gulfport, for road improvements last October. The council voted unanimously to reject the $40,250 bid and follow the recommendation of project engineer James Chinchie. Ladner moved that the council readvertise at a later date.

The council held action on two petitions for tax exempt status from Elger Plumbing Ware and from the Christian Training Institute. Mayor Warren Carver said he was not receptive to the idea of granting Elger another 10-year tax exemption period. Ladner disagreed with the mayor. It seemed a little unfair, he said, to ask Elger to pay taxes along with bond interests for something that eventually would become property of the city.

City attorney Joseph Gex said that the Planning and Zoning Board must first act on a rezoning request before the city could grant tax exempt status to Christian Training Institute.

The city also passed a motion to change the name of Oliver Street to Chinchie Street and accepted a bid of American Fire Equipment for $2058 for a new fire hose.

Clark Named To Executive Position

The election of Alan Olsen Clark to the office of executive vice-president of Merchants Bank and Trust Company has been announced by Guy C. Billups, Jr., Chairman of the Board of Directors. The announcement was made following formal action to that effect by the Board of Directors of the Bank on November 15.

Clark, who joined the staff of Merchants Bank and Trust Company in 1966, is a native of Gulfport. Upon graduating from Gulfport High School in 1958 Clark attended the University of Mississippi, receiving his Bachelor of Science degree in Finance from that institution in 1964.

He served with Gulf National Bank from 1964 to 1966 at which time he joined Merchants Bank and Trust Company as assistant cashier. Six months later he was elected to the office of assistant vice-president and comptroller, and has served as vice-president since 1967.

Clark has extensive banking experience serving in various bank departments which include operations, installments and commercial lending, as well as the real estate department. He is active in the State Junior Bankers Association and is a director of the American Institute of Banking on the Mississippi Gulf Coast. Clark is presently attending the school of Banking of the South at Louisiana State University.

Hancock Teens Attend CYO Convention

The Hancock County Catholic Youth Organization (CYO) was represented at the National CYO Convention in Indianapolis, Indiana November 15-18 by eight students from Hancock North Central High School.

The student representatives were Donna Bilbo, Darlene Cuevas, Leroy Ferguson, Keith Hoda, Linda Ladner and Kirk Martin, all members of the Annunciation CYO from Kiln, Fenton and White Cypress. Other students attending the convention were Pamela Green and Eric Moran, both members of St. Ann's CYO from Clermont Harbor.

The students went to Indianapolis by chartered bus with 24 other teenagers and five adults from Mississippi. Among the adults were Father Pierre Hissey and Sister Francis Katherine of Annunciation Parish and Sister Daniel Elizabeth of St. Ann's Parish.

Highlights of the biennial convention included formulation of resolutions by the 3,000 CYO members who attended from 44 states and 2 provinces of Canada, election of officers and a banquet at which awards were presented to several adults who have devoted themselves to work with the youth.

Danny Thomas received the gold "For God and Youth" award and was the speaker at the banquet. Thomas complimented the many youth of our country who dedicate themselves to doing all they can to better our world - often with little or no public recognition. Host of the banquet was Abe Malouf, of Mississippi, a member of the executive council of the national organization during the past two years.

DEATHS

OLG Book Fair Opens Tuesday

Our Lady's Academy in Bay St. Louis will sponsor a student book fair from Nov. 27 to Nov. 29.

Students will be able to browse and purchase books. The book fair will be open during the hours of 3-5 p.m. Books will be on display in St. Joseph's Academy gymnasium.

The book fair committee invites all students, parents and visitors to attend the fair. The fair will encourage student interest in reading and in building home libraries, and will also contribute to a worthwhile project. The Student Council is sponsoring this event.

The book fair display will include attractive new books from many publishers in all popular price ranges - books to read or to give as gifts. All reading interests will be represented, including classics, fiction, biographies, adventure stories, science, nature, crafts, mystery and reference books. The committee is working with Educational Reading Service, a professional book fair company, to furnish an individual selection of books for the fair.

Junior Humane Society Proposed

Bay-Waveland Humane Society, Inc., met November 13 at Ramada Inn, Waveland, with Mrs. Marie Hoefeld, president, conducting the business session.

The Humane literature introduced in city and county schools to form a junior group among children and young people of the area was the main topic of discussion.

It was stressed the junior division is an important part of all humane societies and it is the hope of the local society that this movement will soon gain momentum.

Mrs. Myra Pearson was named membership chairman.

Plans were formulated for a Christmas party following the December 11 meeting.

Bay-Waveland Humane Society, Inc., is asking anyone who can donate fencing, and cement gates, for the Waveland pounds please call 467-3739.

Presently the dog pound is only small cages with cement floors and the dogs desperately need high fencing material for an exercise yard. Any donation will be appreciated.

ROSS IN GERMANY Army Staff Sergeant Marvin A. Ross Jr., son of Mrs. Joane Schott, 805 Dunbar, Bay St. Louis, is serving as a Radio Carrier and Section Chief with Company B, 26th Signal Battalion at Heilbronn, Germany.

Sgt. Ross' wife, Josephine, lives in England. His father, Marvin A. Ross Sr., lives on Route 1, Hebron, Conn.

BAZAAR items, made by members of American Legion Auxiliary Unit 77 in Waveland, are displayed by from left, Frances Stork, Sarah Cleary, Louella Culbreth and Gladys Bethea. The ladies have been hard at work readying a variety of articles for the Nov. 28, 29, 30 event. All handcrafted items such as knit slippers, hats and ponchos, candles, plants, decoupage, and baked goodies will be on sale at the Legion home at Central and Waveland avenues. The Bazaar will be open each day from noon to 5 p.m. The event is a fund raising affair to equip the new Legion home.

Classroom ETV Use Is Told

Members of Our Lady of the Gulf PTO were treated to a look at some of the programs that are presently available to school children through the Mississippi Educational Television network at their regular meeting last Thursday night.

Kay Patterson, Billy Ivy, and Dave Warnock, all utilization specialists with the Jackson center of ETV previewed a few of the 63 instructional programs that are currently transmitted throughout the year by ETV and answered questions relative to the present and future use of educational television.

Mississippi ETV is presently in its fourth year of broadcasting with programs primarily directed at the elementary grade levels. Programming does go through secondary grade levels, however, and this year one course is offered on the junior college level, according to Ms. Patterson.

Bay St. Louis and the surrounding area received ETV programs on UHF channel 19 which is licensed to Biloxi. The signal is retransmitted from channel 29 in Jackson which is the central production center for the state. ETV will have eight transmitting stations complete this spring with the activation of Channel 12 in Booneville.

OLG students are exposed to two or three programs a day, according to Sister Patricia Sullivan, principal. The programs are usually 15 minutes in length. Different teachers use educational television differently, she said.

The Mississippi Educational network works closely with teachers and schools participating in the programming to provide teacher guides and instructions on how to receive the greatest benefits from televised instruction.

New Orleans Trip Set By PTO

Our Lady of the Gulf PTO will sponsor a bus trip to New Orleans Nov. 29 as part of a fund raising project for the school.

Ms. Virginia Thomas said that the group would attend a luncheon at D.H. Holmes department store in Lake Forest and then be free to do shopping or sightseeing on their own.

The bus will leave from OLG church at 8:45 a.m. Thursday and return at 5 p.m. Cost is $3 per person.

Banquet Honors

Miss Flame Contestants

A banquet, honoring the Hancock County Miss Flame contestants was held Nov. 13, hosted by the Hancock County Firemen's Association.

Rhonda Ladner, Miss Flame 1974, was presented a $50 U.S. Savings Bond by George Cleary, chairman of the annual contest sponsored by the Firemen's Assn. Miss Lori Voss, first runnerup, received a $25 Savings Bond and lockets were presented to the remaining contestants.

Speaking for the association's member departments, Cleary expressed appreciation to parents of the young contestants for their assistance and support in the annual drive to alert the public to the importance of fire prevention awareness.

Benefit Set For Sam Ladner Family

Two local organizations are co-sponsoring a benefit activity to assist the Sam Ladner family in Clermont Harbor.

The Ladners' lost their home and all their belongings in a Saturday night fire. Mr. Ladner, who is a volunteer fireman with the Clermont Harbor department, was injured during the course of the fire fighting necessitating emergency treatment at Hancock General Hospital.

The benefit party, scheduled for Nov. 27 at 7:30 p.m. is jointly sponsored by the Bourgeois-Sheffield-Ray Post No. 77 of the American Legion in Waveland and the Hancock County Firemen's Assn.

George Cleary, American Legion Post adjutant has announced that tickets for the benefit will be available starting Wednesday at all area fire stations as well as Waveland Hardware and Gifts on Coleman Ave.

Post Commander Terry Feeney and Firemen's Assn. President Jay Marsh are appealing to the community to assist the benefit effort by attending the party.

Anyone wishing to make a donation to the cause, Cleary stated, may mail or bring donations to George Cleary, one eleven Dane Rd., Waveland, and asks that checks be made payable to Sam Ladner.

Robinsons Chapel Offers Services

Incorrect information supplied to the Echo caused Robinsons' Chapel on Washington St. in Bay St. Louis to be incorrectly referred to as Roberts Chapel. The newly organized church offers worship services on the second and fourth Sundays of each month, as well as evening services on those days, Sunday school every week and prayer services every Wednesday and Friday evening. The chapel is under the pastorate of Elder Norris Robinson.

PC Drug Specialist's Report Shows Progress

The following is a three-month progress report from Sheila Russell, drug abuse specialist for the Pass Christian School system. The report, printed in full, illustrates the wide spectrum of area covered by drug abuse specialists in Mississippi school system, working under the program newly implemented this year by Governor Waller.

The first three months as Drug Education Specialist for the Pass Christian Municipal Separate School District have been extremely busy, but the foundation has been laid and already there has been a sense of accomplishment.

August was spent primarily reviewing the literature in regard to the current thinking and trends in the field of drug abuse. Self-Study and Evaluation reports of the Pass Christian schools were studied to become better acquainted with the background of the students and the methods of teaching in the system. Visits were made to the Chamber of Commerce, the mayor, and the chief of police to determine the suspected level of drug use in the community.

After this review, it was decided that the thrust of the drug education program that would best meet the needs of this school district would be toward value clarification, working on positive self-concept, inter and intra-personal relationships and decision-making, problem-solving skills. To this end, curricula of other schools, games, kits, and literature were ordered that would aid in these concepts.

In September with the beginning of school, involvement was more student-oriented, at least on the high school level, probably due to the fact that the office is in the high school. Discussions regarding drugs were held in classes on current events, health classes, and family life classes. A total of 15 talks were given in high school classes in September. One assembly program was given to tenth through twelfth graders in regard to the possibility of beginning peer-counseling groups. Two "React" television program panel discussions were taped and one live program, "Just Coasting", was done for WLOX-TV, channel 13, in Biloxi. Students passing by the office came in for literature about drugs until the supply was depleted. Several students came in to talk about "friends" who had drug problems, asking how they could help. Talks were given at workshops for the Ocean Springs faculties, and the Hancock County principals. Work was begun on the drug education program for the Pass Christian Municipal Separate School system.

Compilation of this program was completed during the first week in October, presented to the faculties, approved by the principals, and on October 11, adopted by the Board of Trustees. The Steck-Vaughn Human Value Series was presented to the elementary school faculties and the fifth and sixth grade teachers at the middle school.

Use of this series was recommended as supplementary reading for these grades. Volunteers were requested on the elementary level to work with the drug education specialist on a more detailed curriculum in drug education to be incorporated into the existing programs.

Work was begun on arranging workshops for the faculties on values clarification, self concept, and drug information. Dr. Burkett from Mississippi State University, Don Tubbs from the Memphis School System; Dr. Parkman, supervisor of Alcohol and Narcotics Education for the State Department of Education; and Dr. Russell, Director of the Mississippi Gulf Coast Drug Abuse Center, are to participate in dates can be arranged for the workshops that will be satisfactory to all concerned.

Training sessions for educators concerned with drug abuse were begun by the Drug Abuse Center and were attended on a weekly basis by the drug education specialist along with the guidance counselors of the high school. A workshop on "Inside-Out" by ETV of Mississippi was also attended. Also this month, talks were given to the West Harrison County Jaycees, an ESAP dinner meeting, and the Pass Christian Rotary. Films were provided on two occasions for a teacher for class discussions. Materials which had been ordered began to arrive and were given to various teachers for trial usage. Values games were placed in the DeLisle Elementary School, and a Special Education class in the high school. The DUSO (Developing Understanding of Self and Others) kit was placed in the Pass Elementary School. A drug survey was given to six classes by Coastal Mental Health.

Drug Abuse Prevention Week was observed enthusiastically in all schools. Elementary school children drew posters and wrote stories about preventing drug abuse. The fifth and sixth graders wrote commercials for preventing drug abuse which were enacted by the students and video-taped by the

What Would You Like To Know . . .

About Your City?

Members of the Bay St. Louis City Council have expressed a desire for local citizens to become better informed of the affairs of their community and the workings of their city government.

Questions concerning the tax structure or assessments, city operating costs, areas of income and disbursement of funds and any other of a reasonable nature will be answered by council members in a new series starting this week in the Echo.

In cooperation with the city council, the Echo will publish each week a questionnaire which can be clipped out and mailed or brought in person to City Hall. Questions submitted will be answered the following week and as much information as possible on the subject will be supplied by whichever council member appropriate. While the council would prefer that the correspondent identify himself, names are not necessary and any question of a reasonable nature will be answered.

Readers are reminded that questionnaires must be submitted to City Hall, not the Echo.

Advantages Noted Of Legal Intern Program

Currently serving their University of Mississippi law internships in Gulfport law offices, Frank Campbell, John Genin, Richard J. Smith, and James E. Thomas agree that the intern program has its definite advantages.

They said that as interns they learn the practical aspects in the practice of law by participating in actual trial procedures. "We learn to think on our feet," said Campbell. "Seeing the law as it is practiced and not just as an academic study is most beneficial," he added.

The Ole Miss intern program was put into effect in 1970 with a Federal grant under the direction of Judge N.S. Sweat, chairman of the Law faculty internship committee, and Dr. Parham Williams, dean of the Ole Miss Law School.

"It has been a highly successful and piloted program that has been noted universal. A substantial number of law schools across the country have adopted similar intern programs," said Dean Williams.

Genin, Smith, and Thomas are under the supervision of District Attorney Albert Necaise. Genin, of Bay St. Louis, Miss., is responsible for legal research and handling preliminary hearings. A native of Brookhaven, Miss., Smith said that his responsibilities are many. "I am mainly called upon to work closely with the prosecutor in trial work and preliminary matters," he said.

Thomas, of Gulfport, said that he researches points of law and acts on behalf of the state in arraignments and in change of pleas. "I conduct preliminary hearings for the state and assist the prosecutor during trials," said Thomas. Working under the supervision of Edward Gaines, Campbell said that an intern could take on as many responsibilities as he wanted. "As an intern you are able to see that the law deals with people and not just papers," he said.

According to Dean Williams, "The program provides the vitally needed trial experience for law students and equips them to function effectively as lawyers."

Colling's Corner

By E.S. Colling

"Over the river and through the woods
To Grandfather's house we go..."

This is the first day of the happiest weeks of the year. From Thanksgiving to New Year there is a special balsam in the air that makes the blood run a little stronger, a feeling combined of hope and anticipation and happiness that makes up for all of the doldrums of the passing year.

In the old days, when we were a child, it began with The Thanksgiving Dinner at grandma's house, when all of the family got together to laugh and talk—and eat! Aunt Emily was a professional cooking teacher, the very first of her kind, forerunner of all the Betty Crockers and Julia Childs, and you can bet that grandma's dinner was sum'n! There must have been about twenty of us in all. Uncle Charlie, as the eldest, did the honors with the immense turkey. Dad carved the ducks, and Uncle Fred sliced the specially cured venison.

Well, no use listing the rest of the meal or the half dozen kinds of pie and desserts—and fancy candles, Aunt Emily's specialty. Suffice it to say that it was a big dinner, bigger than most of us can afford these days. And then we sang around the piano, all of the old ballads like "White Wings", "The Church in the Vale"—and especially the Thanksgiving Hymn, written in Holland in 1597 and adopted two hundred years later by America as the special song for the Big Day.

Yes, the old-fashioned Thanksgiving was truly a big day. But what about the present Thanksgiving—today, for instance? Perhaps our dinner won't be as varied and sumptuous, but there will be plenty of it, even if chicken has to fill in for turkey. But nothing will have to fill in for gratitude and love, for they will be in abundance at our Thanksgiving board, and our dinner will be a "magnificent spectacle of human happiness." Forgotten for the day are the worrisome tribulations of the times; the dishonest public servant, the grasping corporation officer, the cheating merchant—all can stew in their own juice this day when "We gather together to ask the Lord's blessing."

He chastens and hastens His will to make known.
The wicked oppressing will cease from distressing.

Sing praises to His name, He forgets not His own!

And as we push back from the table, our thoughts already on the coming joys of Yule, we can say with the poet: "Serenely full, the epicure would say; Fate cannot harm me—I have dined today!"

TURNING ON THE HEAT

The President's energy message of November 7 no doubt cooled down this nation's generators, but it also ignited a fire under those researchers struggling to develop alternate sources of energy. And that's something we should have done long before now.

After all, we've known for years that gas and oil reserves will eventually be depleted—leaving us no alternative but to look for other sources of energy. We won't be running completely out of fuel this winter, but the time isn't far down the road when we will be forced to employ cleaner, more efficient energy sources.

There are endless possibilities, of course. Nuclear energy, solar energy, and geothermal energy are just three of the energy sources we will probably be turning to in the years ahead.

Congress has already taken several steps to increase the supply of energy in the future. Additional funds have been appropriated for energy research and development in almost any field you care to name.

In the more immediate future, there is the recently approved Alaskan Pipeline, a mammoth project designed to bring a direct flow of Alaskan oil to the United States as early as 1977. That should provide a tremendous boost to our oil reserves, but it by no means will provide all the fuel we need to run this country.

Many people still refuse to believe that we actually have an energy crisis. Others contend that it is a manufactured crisis, that the major oil companies have promoted it.

Real or manufactured, it is clear that all of us must begin to make sacrifices for the good of the entire country. Our lights won't go out tomorrow, but we do need to take some action to slow down our rate of energy consumption.

A glimpse at the dramatic energy increase in the last 20 years will show you why we must begin to slow down. The total amount of energy consumed in the United States in mid-1973 is 223 percent of the amount used in 1950—well over twice as much!

Up until recently, Middle Eastern countries were exporting almost 1.2 million barrels of oil a day to the United States, an increase of about 800,000 barrels a day from 1972. As late as early October, Mideast oil made up 18 percent of U.S. imports.

Take away that 18 percent and you can see why we are feeling the pinch.

So what are we to do? The President suggested several things, including:

- (1) Lowering the speed limit on highways to 50 miles per hour;
- (2) Reducing the temperature in our homes this winter to 68 degrees;
- (3) Saving electricity by turning off unnecessary lighting; and
- (4) Authorizing year-round daylight savings time.

Like the Alaskan Pipeline, these suggestions alone will not curtail the current energy shortage. But together, along with other energy-saving steps, they will make it an easier winter for all Americans.

In retrospect, this is something we should have done long ago. It's high time someone built a fire under us.

Local VA News

BY
Chester L. Curvey

Veterans and widows receiving VA non-service-connected pensions and parents in receipt of DIC benefits, except those who have attained age 72 by January 1, 1974, and who were on the rolls two years prior to that time have been furnished an income questionnaire.

This card must be completed and returned to the VA listed on the envelope prior to January 15, 1974, otherwise payment will be withheld until it is received. If the card is not returned at some time, all benefits received during 1973 will be considered an overpayment and will have to be repaid.

Do not bend or fold this card since it must be fed into a computer and if it is mutilated in any way this work must then be done by hand; also keep the envelope provided to return the card in.

There can be cases where a card is received by someone who should not receive one. In every case the card should be completed and returned to the Veterans Administration listed on the envelope.

There can be cases where a card is not received by someone below 72 years of age and not on the rolls for 2 years. There will be some cases where the card is lost or destroyed. In these cases a report must be made by use of the following forms: Veteran—VA Form 21-6897, Widow—VA Form 21-4100, and parent on VA Form—21-4179c. These forms can be obtained from your local Veterans Service Officer if you are one of the cases listed above.

The rule remains that excessive medical expenses are any amount above 5 percent of the income to be reported. These substitute reports should be sent to the claimants authorized representative (POA) for handling.

Those who do not receive a card should promptly report excessive medical expenses or change of income as previously instructed by the VA.

In 1974 Supplemental Social Security income payable to the aged, blind, and disabled should not be reported as Social Security income. It is classified as Welfare or Public Assistance and is reported in the space provided on the income questionnaire card.

In cases where both parents are living together, each receives a card. The cards must both be completed, regardless of income, and mailed back to the VA. They should be kept together if possible.

A "STUFFED" TURKEY

Our Readers Write

Dear Editor:

A Thanksgiving party for the senior citizens of the Pearlington area was given at the local community center on Wednesday November 14th.

Through the leadership of Mrs. Irma G. Cuevas, with the help of volunteer workers, funds were raised by donations and games, for a free, at no cost to the recipients, Thanksgiving turkey dinner with all the trimmings including pumpkin pie and seasonal decorations.

Eighty-year-olds danced to the tunes of Flip Johnson and his boys who furnished the music free of charge and furnished their own transportation. A total of 50 dinners were served at the center and 10 were delivered to shut ins.

Activities such as this plus the weekly gatherings at the center where refreshments are also served free, has certainly boosted the morale of the aged in this area. The community owes a debt of gratitude to Mrs. Cuevas and her volunteer workers, and they should be commended for their continuous untiring efforts in bringing cheer and warmth into the hearts of those in their waning years.

Carl L. Bradford

Pearlington

Dear Sir:

Because so many people do not have a true picture of the role a humane society plays in the community, we are writing this letter and requesting that you kindly print it. It may help to clarify the workings of our organization.

First and foremost is the fact that any one of us connected with our organization works without remuneration of any kind. Our services are given free of charge and all expenses relative to that service are absorbed either by the individual as a donation to the society or by the society itself. At no time ever is anyone connected with the Bay-Waveland Humane Society, Inc., paid for services rendered.

Secondly, we do not work independently as far as the shelters and animal wards of each city is concerned. This is due primarily to the fact that we do not have a shelter of our own as yet. Our fondest dream and greatest hope is that someday we will be so fortunate as to have one that we operate so as to give more in-depth assistance to the animals and society as well. However, that day has not yet arrived and so we must work with the two cities involved. When further laws are passed allowing the county to have shelters and animal control, we will also be happy to work with them. We aid and abet those who want our services. We pay no employees.

Therefore, when people have complaints such as stray animals to be picked up, or disturbances by animals running at large, these people are to call the parttime animal wardens of either city. In Bay St. Louis the number to call is 467-9221, which is the Bay police station and leave the message for Mr. Mike Bailey. In Waveland the number to call is 467-7853, the home of Mr. Ory Bourgeois and leave the message for him. If the situation warrants more detailed assistance, then call the city hall of which ever city is involved. We feel sure that the employees in these offices will give the citizen as courteous and prompt service as is possible. As the humane society does not hire the animal wardens and does not pay their salaries, we cannot do their jobs for them. We do however, maintain open communications with both and find them to be sincere, cooperative men who do their best to please citizens within their ability and time limit they are able to devote to the job. And a tough job it is. Most people do not realize that but working as close as we do with these wardens, we respect them and the hats of the Bay-Waveland Humane Society, Inc., are off to them.

Third and last—our society is not a law enforcement agency. We work within the framework of the law but we do not carry badges. We request that people report cruelties to animals to us, such as abandonment, lack of food, shelter, water, etc., anything of that nature. We try to mediate, we quote laws (the existence of the "Crimes & Misdemeanors—Mississippi State Anti-Cruelty Laws" is not well known so we advise of these), we do all we can to bring the matter to a satisfactory conclusion for the sake of the animal and society as well. Although the very reason for our existence is for the betterment of the animals, we take strongly into consideration the welfare of society. We feel that everyone should accept the responsibility of his own pet and not allow it to be a nuisance to one's neighbors. We try to put that idea across to the public. We help in whatever manner we can.

For further information relative to the work of the Bay-Waveland Humane Society, Inc., we request that people contact us at P.O. Box 471, Waveland, Miss. We will be delighted to get in touch with any and all for we badly need help from the community. "Help us to help you". The more the general public gets involved, the more we can assist the many, many calls for help we receive.

Thank you for all the help and cooperation we receive from the Sea Coast Echo.

NEWS FROM SENATOR JAMES O. EASTLAND

When Teddy Roosevelt was President, a tinkling White House chandelier disturbed him. The old Rough Rider, so the story goes, ordered it removed, saying: "Put it in the vice president's office. Maybe it will keep him awake."

The historic chandelier still hangs in the vice president's office. But Senator James O. Eastland—who now has assumed the duties of the vice president—says he doesn't need it to keep him awake.

"There's plenty to keep me busy," said the Mississippi lawmaker, who now has at least four major governmental assignments. "It's another, fulltime job," he added. Eastland is, in effect, the acting vice president of the United States. This new high post comes on top of his primary responsibility as Senator from Mississippi, Chairman of the powerful Judiciary Committee, and President Pro Tempore of the Senate. He assumed the vice presidential duties when Spiro T. Agnew resigned October 10.

The Senator now has all the powers and prerogatives of the nation's Number Two post. "They tell me it amounts to being vice president, except I am second in the line of succession to the President," he said.

He said "a lot of extra responsibility" comes with the job. "I won't be applying for this position on a fulltime basis," he laughed.

Eastland receives the Vice President's salary by law and directs the 35-member staff in offices scattered from one end of Pennsylvania Avenue to the other. There are four offices—one in the White House, a working office in the Senate Office Building, another in the Capitol, and the prestigious

FERTILIZER

Fertilizer supplies are short now and are likely to be even shorter next spring. It is estimated that farmers (based on projected acreage) will need around 30 percent more fertilizer than will be available during 1974.

Here are some suggestions that may help avoid this problem and step up yields at the same time.

Soil test to see where phosphate and potash are most needed. Apply nitrogen as near to the time the crop will actually use it as possible. Stop using nitrogen on legume crops, like soybeans and clovers, that do not need additional nitrogen. Lime all soils that need lime. This will improve the efficiency of the fertilizer you use.

Where available, use poultry or other animal wastes. These will supplement commercial fertilizers. Animal wastes are usually more effective when disked or otherwise worked into the soil. Around four to five tons per acre is usually enough.

Basic slag with potash (0-6-6) will supply liming materials as well as phosphate and potash.

Use the nitrogen materials that are in best supply. Anhydrous ammonia is in fairly good supply. Urea is short and ammonium nitrate is extremely short. Buy and store your winter and spring needs now as prices are likely to be higher next spring.

IMPROVE PIG LITTER SIZE

Here are some tips to help you do a better job of pork production. Use crossbred gilts. Due to hybrid vigor you get an increase in litter size and weaning weights. Cull old, off-type poor producing sows.

Do not breed gilts to young. Wait until they are near eight months old. Buy boars six to eight weeks before you are ready to use them. Feed to boar well during the breeding season and handle him gently. Where possible, bring the sows to the boar for breeding. Breed sows twice, 12 to 24 hours apart, preferably the second day of heat.

For all breeding animals, provide top grazing. Vaccinate sows twice a year for leptos and erysipelas. Keep a good salt mineral mix before bred gilts and sows. Don't let the sows or gilts get too fat at breeding time or during gestation. Feed the bred gilts about five to six pounds of a 15 percent complete ration and sows four pounds daily. Just keep them in good-doing condition. Do not mix bred gilts with larger, older sows. Have a dry, draft-free, quiet area for sows to farrow.

PLANTING FRUIT TREES

It is time to order the fruit trees that you want to plant this season. When ordering, specify a delivery date and try to get the trees planted the same day you receive them. If this is not possible, heel in the trees and do not let the roots dry out.

ceremonial office just off the Senate floor where that historic chandelier hangs. Two other offices are already assigned to the Senator as President Pro Tempore.

He has access to the vice presidential limousine and the fleet of White House aircraft. Eastland, though, has ordered the radio-equipped limousine parked in the Senate garage and sticks to his usual procedure of flying commercial aircraft except in most urgent situations.

He flew aboard the sleek jet from Mississippi to Washington a week ago when the President summoned him to a White House meeting. Otherwise, the Senator points to the energy crisis as "a good reason" for leaving the big jet parked on the runway.

The new position places on Eastland a wide range of new responsibilities. He now must preside over every Senate session and he alone can name another Senator to preside in his place. As the presiding officer, he must rule on major parliamentary questions during debates in the Upper Chamber.

The Senator receives all communications from the President, heads of executive departments—and from foreign governments. "We must act on several letters each day that come as official mail to the Vice President," he said.

Now only a heartbeat away from the presidency, Eastland will slip easily back into his triple role as President Pro Tempore, Judiciary Committee Chairman and Senator from the Magnolia State once a new vice president is confirmed. That could be a while yet, but, as Senator Eastland put it: "It won't be a minute too soon."

Irene du Pont Explains 'Why Mississippi?'

The following text is an address by Irene du Pont, senior vice-president of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., made at the Governor's Conference on Economic Development in Jackson November 13.

The Echo is reprinting the address in its entirety as we feel it is of particular import to the citizens of the Gulf Coast area, not only as the du Pont company is considering location of a multi-million dollar plant in Harrison County, but as an insight into the vast complexities of industrial growth. Mississippi is, hopefully, on the threshold of such growth and its citizens should be prepared to keep pace with its development.

WHY MISSISSIPPI?

I am indebted to Dr. Robinson for his kind words of introduction, not only for myself but for the du Pont Company. In fact, this is the second time within a week that the du Pont Company has enjoyed the welcome of Governor Waller and the people of this state. In expressing my appreciation, I would like also to convey the greetings of du Pont's more than 100,000 employees.

It is a particular pleasure to have the opportunity to visit Mississippi today and hear firsthand about some of your plans for the future. Mississippi is one of 22 states, including Alaska and Hawaii, that share our nation's coastline. du Pont has production facilities in 15 of those 22 states, including several of your neighbors. But so far, as you know, we have no plant in Mississippi.

That situation may change. Last week, as you have already heard, we confirmed that we are considering a plant site in Harrison County. The next step is to run intensive engineering studies to determine whether the kind of plant we have in mind will fit the property we have optioned. I hope these studies will give us a clear green light.

Study First Step

We have found that such close study is a necessary precaution. The selection of plant sites is becoming one of the most difficult arts in the management of an industrial firm. This is a far cry from the casual procedures used early in our country's history. Many a business once got started in a woodshed, and moved across town to an empty warehouse when larger quarters were needed. My great-grandfather, who founded the du Pont Company in 1802, settled in Wilmington, Del., almost by accident. An emigre fleeing the excesses that followed the French revolution, he was headed for the western frontiers of Virginia, in pursuit of a land development dream. But while looking for financial backers on the East Coast, he was persuaded to make gunpowder for the infant republic, and du Pont has been headquartered in Wilmington ever since.

Today the search for a new site must be painstaking and thorough, especially in the chemical industry. The investments are huge. Once a multi-million dollar facility is built, the company is stuck with its site selection, for better or for worse, for a long time.

It is usually possible to overcome deficiencies in a new product, or to correct inefficiencies in a new process. But it is very difficult to overcome deficiencies in plant locations.

du Pont is only one of many industrial firms seeking new sites today. In the chemical industry alone, spending for new facilities is up about 25 per cent this year over 1972. Construction costs this year, in fact, will top $4 billion for the first time in history. And these expenditures will probably keep climbing in the years ahead. We must be careful to spend all these billions of dollars prudently.

Criteria For Selection

The guidelines we have worked out are the ones I want to talk about today. Since I've been a du Pont employee most of my working career, they are the ones I know best. I believe the basic principles, however, are shared by most firms looking for new manufacturing sites, even though physical needs may vary as they do within our own organization.

Our criteria are many and diverse. du Pont's site selection group once enumerated something like 84 factors they consider. Since you have a full program slated for this afternoon, I promise not to get into all 84 here today. But let me mention a few of the more important criteria of plant site selection, to show you what we considered when we came to look at Harrison County.

One major parameter in du Pont's site selection process is a social and economic analysis, state by state, conducted by our staff of economists. Five broad categories are considered: namely, fiscal conditions, industrial conditions, population characteristics, construction costs, and the geographic pattern of existing du Pont investment.

Fiscal conditions, in plain language, comes down to a state's tax structure, how much public debt it is carrying per capita and the size of the public welfare load. du Pont does not have fixed numbers in mind, but tries to evaluate the overall health of each state and its ability to carry its obligations in relation to other states.

What's The Wage Picture?

Industrial conditions come down to questions like these: What's the wage picture? Is there a supply of good workers available? How good are the labor-management relations? How much time is lost due to strikes? Do the labor laws treat management and labor as equals? Is the state too dependent on manufacturing industry? Are unemployment insurance rates so high as to indicate difficulty in absorbing the effects of business cycles?

In examining population characteristics, our economists look at growth rates. They believe that moderate growth is preferable to rapid expansion in fostering a stable business climate. They also look at the ratio of urban to rural population, since fewer problems tend to develop where the rural population is not overwhelmed by the number of urban dwellers.

There is nothing like experience on the farm to build resourcefulness in a work force.

In examining construction costs, our economists simply weigh all the factors that determine the cost of building our kind of plant in one region as compared with another.

Finally, we look at the current distribution of du Pont investment. du Pont is convinced that our investment should not be concentrated in a few small areas, where operations might be unduly affected by regional problems. We are equally concerned that our own up and downs, which we hope will be minimal, should not unduly disturb the economic well-being of one particular region.

With a little help from a computer, all this information is weighed and added up. The result is an index number which rates each state in the union on its economic favorability, as viewed from within du Pont. Other companies, of course, might choose to weigh some of these factors differently from the way we do, but they follow a similar line of reasoning.

Miss. Rated High

Now, how does Mississippi measure up against these specific criteria?

I am happy to tell you that we rate Mississippi among the very top choices in the most preferred state grouping. Your state tax structures seem comparatively fair and reasonable. Your construction costs are moderate and your work force has a reputation for being productive. You seem to have a good balance between your rural and industrial sectors.

In fact, Mississippi has ranked very high on our preferred list for many years. This, of course, provokes some questions: Why has du Pont never made a major plant investment in Mississippi? Why have we passed over Mississippi in recent years?

These questions in turn lead me to a discussion of the other major parameter in our site selection process; namely, the suitability of a given site for the specific manufacturing operation. Evaluation is not just between states - that is, between Mississippi and Georgia, or Texas and Wisconsin, for example. The evaluation is between specific sites, such as a Gulfport, Mississippi and a Jacksonville, Florida; or a Corpus Christi, Texas and an Athens, Georgia. The choice must be made by the manufacturing group involved.

Each of du Pont's manufacturing departments triggers its own search when forecasts indicate the need for more capacity requiring a new plant site. In doing so, it calls upon experts in a number of our staff departments, including Engineering, Legal, Public Affairs, Transportation and Distribution, Employee Relations and our Real Estate Division.

Economic Factors

Here again a rather sizable list of technical and economic factors has to be considered. Those of you who have been involved in industrial development work could probably name these factors more quickly than I can. But for those who are less familiar with this activity, let me list just a few of the more important of these factors:

1) One is proximity to markets.

2) Another is proximity to raw materials and other supplies.

3) A third criterion: What ecological factors may be critical? As the fight against air, water and land pollution gathers momentum, and industry continues to expand to meet the public's needs, it becomes increasingly important to find sites where we can work with nature to meet disposal needs.

Let me digress for a moment to say that du Pont has long had a policy of building no new facilities that did not equal or better all existing standards for waste disposal. But these standards keep changing, and our technology is being pushed to its very limits today to make sure we continue to be good neighbors in matters of the environment.

4) A fourth factor is transportation costs. Incoming and outgoing shipments must be prompt and economical. We need access roads, railroad spur lines, and in some cases, deepwater landing.

5) A fifth factor is the availability of utilities and services such as fuel, electricity, process water, and cooling water.

6) A sixth factor is the availability of trained or trainable manpower. Not only is it desirable that this human resource be available for our needs, but that our hiring new employees won't work a hardship on other businesses already established in the area.

7) A seventh factor is a whole collection of needs usually summed up under the label of livability. We are concerned here with community conditions: Will local residents who come to work for us want to stay here? Is the community attractive to the technical and supervisory people who must be transferred by du Pont initially to get the plant running?

The catalog can be a long one. It usually includes such features as libraries, churches, the quality of the schools and medical care, shopping facilities, cultural centers, recreational opportunities, the amount of housing available at various price levels, good local government, and so on.

8) As an eighth item, let me mention some other economic factors which also pertain to a specific site, within the broad regional picture: namely, land acquisition costs, local building restrictions, the local tax history, etc.

9) Finally, there are specific factors of topography, geography, and geology - water tables, flood levels, soil starts - that affect engineering considerations.

Some Factors Clash

Now, let us acknowledge that some of the criteria we have been describing sometimes bump heads with each other. Livability factors often stressed by managerial and technical people - pupil-teacher ratios, the number of theaters and music halls, variety in restaurant fare, etc. - are most often found in densely populated areas. These areas, however, are also the ones plagued by high tax rates, high welfare loads, overly dense industrial concentrations, the thickest smog, the highest crime rates, and the worst traffic congestion. For these reasons, the quality of life criteria are difficult to define and index.

Nonetheless, industrial site selectors have to try to weigh all these factors together. Now, let me take a couple of minutes more to describe how du Pont combines these two parameters when it goes out to look for a plant site.

First of all, site selection specialists working with the manufacturing specialists develop a detailed list of basic plant requirements. They consider not only the initial project but also possible future expansions.

They then select several possible regional locations based on the most critical of these requirements. They proceed to measure these regional locations against the basic economic criteria which I described earlier.

Within the preferred regions, the specialists then select specific sites meeting plant requirements.

Next they option two or more of the best sites and proceed with a detailed study, accompanied by negotiations with local development experts and potential suppliers of utilities and services. Meanwhile other du Pont specialists take close look at the ecological situation, livability factors, and so on.

Always A Bridesmaid

Several times in recent years, Mississippi has figured prominently in these deliberations. But obviously your state has ended up being a bridesmaid instead of a bride.

Why Was This So?

The answers to this question - and there are more than one - do not reflect on Mississippi. Rather, they testify to the very real difficulties of matching up an attractive site with a specific project.

For example, several textile fibers plant sites were chosen in the Carolinas and Georgia because they were closer to major customers in those states and cost factors were favorable. Likewise several chemical intermediates plants were located to petrochemical feedstocks in Texas and Louisiana.

In a couple of cases, deepwater sites - now becoming very difficult to find - were a critical cost consideration.

But I believe, as do other people at du Pont, that in recent years Mississippi has become increasingly attractive not only on a statewide economic basis, but in meeting the exacting demands of other factors at specific sites.

For one thing, the general spread of industrial growth across the U.S. has diffused market patterns. New technologies in transportation have also provided more alternatives. The interstate highway system permits faster trucking of some supplies and finished products. Good barging facilities can now make transshipment a feasible alternative to deepwater access as in the case of the Harrison County site.

Attractive Livability

Furthermore, with increasing emphasis on ecological and recreational needs, Mississippi has its own very attractive brand of livability. The easy access to parks and "playgrounds" throughout the state is very attractive to many of our people. Your state's relatively uncrowded spaces also appeal to those who are fed up with commuting in dense urban areas.

Factors Summarized

Let me pause now to summarize briefly and to make one more essential point.

In du Pont's plant site selection process, Mississippi has for some time held a top rating on our list of states as determined by a broad economic analysis. We have had some difficulty, however, in fitting a particular, available site to the very specialized and exacting demands of our manufacturing projects. We hope this will change with the Harrison County site we have optioned for the pigments facility described in last week's announcement.

The system would include countywide planning, more and more on development people who have a thorough knowledge of their territory.

In coming to Harrison County, du Pont was helped considerably by the Harrison County Development Commission, the Agricultural and Industrial Board, and the utilities and authorities in the Gulfport area.

We have had a number of Mississippi's native sons in our management ranks for some time. I can assure you that they speak well for the cause of Mississippi.

If our plans now under study come to fruition, you can be assured that du Pont will make every effort to see that the bride and groom in this case are well matched. We believe the benefits should flow both ways.

We believe that a growing number of industrial firms - of differing sizes and varied operations - will come to similar conclusions in the years ahead. Mississippi has splendid assets to offer. I know you people believe you have a great product to sell, and that you are going to convince a great many business leaders of this fact.

Modernize County Government Is Plea

The Mississippi Economic Council today issued a plea to state lawmakers to "respond to the demands of the people of Mississippi" and modernize county government.

The Council appeared before the House County Affairs Committee on invitation from Committee Chairman John Pearson of Rosedale.

The MEC presentation to the committee included information from various studies on Mississippi county government conducted over the past 20 years.

"The most notable of these reports," said Tatum, "is the 1972 General Legislative Investigating Committee's report that shows Mississippi ranking first among all states in county road expenditures on a per capita basis."

Speaking on behalf of the Council, MEC Vice-President Joe F. Tatum of Hattiesburg said in noting that the Council has long supported county-unit proposals, "that although change is difficult, although the beat system is ingrained in county administration, we should recognize that we have advanced over the past 80 years."

"Despite 40 years of legislative and professional studies of county government in Mississippi supporting the unit system, the Boards of Supervisors have failed to exercise their option and return to the more efficient unit system," Tatum said.

The Hattiesburg businessman said the Council "opposes" an optional provision for county unit and also opposes any provision for a referendum.

"The Constitution provides that the Legislature is to prescribe the method of administering the road systems in the counties. To refer this issue to a vote of the people would abdicate your responsibility as elected representatives and would be an admission of your unwillingness to make a decision."

The MEC vice president said the Council supports a mandatory county unit system with the Board of Supervisors' acting in the manner of a board of directors of a corporation.

The Supervisors would then set policy for the county as a unit with all administrative functions being handled by a manager employed by and responsible to the Board.

"The system would include countywide planning,

THE HOWARD J. AMANN FAMILY AND LITTLE DAUGHTER GET CAMARO FOR CHRISTMAS FROM HERB BARON AT TURAN-LANE CHEVROLET. Mr. Howard Amann of Bay St. Louis needed good economical transportation for his job in New Orleans. He visited Turan-Lane Chevrolet and talked to salesman Herb Baron who was very cooperative, and helped him make the selection of a late model Camaro. Mr. Amann was well pleased with the Camaro and also with the very good deal. Turan-Lane Chevrolet has a lot full of late model cars to select from and also new 1974 Chevrolets.

Congregate Meals Program Begins

Tri-County Coordinator for the new Title VII Nutrition Program, Mrs. Lucille Feeney, has just returned from Denton, Texas, where she attended a two-week nutrition orientation workshop.

This was a Federal requirement for the implementation of this program which is designed to meet the acute nutritional needs of older Americans with low incomes by providing hot meals in congregated centers.

The initial budget period provides for one site in each of the three counties of Hancock, Harrison and Jackson, and they are located at the Valena C. Jones Senior Center, Bay St. Louis, the Lawrence Jones Housing Authority, Gulfport and the Charles W. Warner Housing Authority in Pascagoula. These centers were chosen in view of the concentration of elderly persons with the greatest need for nutritional assistance in those particular areas.

In stressing the guidelines, Mrs. Feeney indicated the eligible will be those persons who are aged 60 and over, who cannot afford to eat adequately, have limited mobility or lack the necessary skills or incentive to select and prepare nourishing and well-balanced meals, together with the spouses of such individuals. Minority groups are also eligible.

The initial phase began November 19 at all three locations and referrals for participation will be accepted at the following telephone numbers: Hancock County - 467-8291; Harrison - 864-2611; Jackson - 475-3640.

The program is funded by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Administration on Aging, Social and Rehabilitative Service through Mississippi's Council on Aging and contracted through Southern Mississippi Planning and Development District.

PROUD OF HER kill, 16-year-old Terri Moran, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Moran of Bay St. Louis, stands beside the 85 pound doe she shot on a recent hunting trip in the Colorado mountains. Other members of the hunting party from the Bay included Rene Bermond, Jr. and Redden Brewer.

BROWNIE GIFTS

Members of Waveland Brownie Troop 430 presented special pre-Thanksgiving baskets which they had made to two elderly Waveland residents last week.

Members of the troop participating in the gift project were Mary Lagenbacker, Sadona Ladner, Jackie Smith, Shawn Heath, Diane Tenney, Mikki Brashier, Linda Perniclaro and Libby Peterson. Also participating were Deanna and Michelle Peterson, Janet and Laura Woodruff and Mary Schwartz. Mrs. Chester Ladner is troop leader and Mrs. Frank Langenbacker is assistant leader.

BLUE JEANS MEET

Blue Jeans Garden Club met Monday afternoon in Gulf National Bank's civic room with Mrs. Joseph Servat, president, presiding. Mrs. Servat was re-elected president for the coming year.

Others elected were Mrs. Robert Taconi, vice president; Mrs. J.C. Goodloe, secretary; Mrs. H. W. Duke was re-elected treasurer.

The annual Christmas party was discussed and the date set for December 17 at 12:30 p.m. at the White Pillars, Biloxi. Mrs. Vivian Moffett and Mrs. A.M. Thomas hosted the social hour.

CABRINI BRATTON

Miss Bratton Is National Stewardess

Miss Cabrini Bratton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Bratton, 331 Menge Ave., Pass Christian, was graduated recently from National Airlines Stewardess School and is now based in Miami, Fla.

The young stewardess is a graduate of Pass Christian High School and attended the University of Mississippi before joining the National Airlines corporation. At the University she was a member of Zeta Tau Alpha social sorority. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Benvenuti, also of Pass Christian.

Past Presidents Honored

Past presidents of American Legion Auxiliary Unit 139 were honored at the group's meeting last Monday night at the Legion Home.

Honored were Mesdames Warren Carver, Russell Elliott, Gordon Romanoff, Albert Biehl Sr., Joe Compretta, Henry Prevou, Claiborne Ladner, Lena Cuevas, Irene Hille and C.J. Piazza.

Mrs. Edward Pasciak presented each honoree with a corsage of poppies; she also gave a history of the Unit from the time of its organization in 1947, to the present.

It was announced the membership drive is now being conducted and the Veterans annual Christmas gift shop will be December 4, 5, and 6 at the Gulfport V.A. Hospital.

Hostesses for the social hour were Mesdames Henry Capdepon, Claiborne Ladner, Rene Bermond Sr. and Irene Hille.

Farewell Party Given For CMDR. Luedke

A farewell party was given in honor of Commander D.D. Luedke, who is retiring after 27 years of service with the United States Coast Guard.

For the past two years Commander Luedke has served as Liaison between the United States Coast Guard and the United States Coast Guard Auxiliary.

He has encouraged and instructed members of the United States Coast Guard Auxiliary in Division III, to become more proficient in their voluntary work of saving lives and property among the boating public.

The party was held Nov. 18, at the West Side Community Center in Gulfport, Miss., approximately 50 United States Coast Guard Auxiliary members attended the party. Other guests of honor were Commander Heinrichs, U.S.C.G., and wife Chris, of Mobile, Ala. Commander Butler, U.S.C.G., and wife Mary Lou, of New Orleans, La. Mike Logsdon, S.K. 3 U.S.C.G. and wife Mary Ann, of Mobile, Ala., and Chief Clyde Bowden, U.S.C.G., and wife Ginger, of Norfolk, Va. Those attending the party expressed their gratitude to Commander Luedke for his assistance and accomplishments.

Lakeshore Club Officers Set

Mrs. William Richardson was elected president of Lakeshore Garden Club at the November 15 meeting held in the home of Mrs. Lloyd Garcia.

Others named to office were Mrs. Robert Taconi, vice president. Mrs. Ben Mutter, re-elected secretary, and Mrs. Joseph Servat, re-elected treasurer. Mrs. Servat conducted the meeting in the absence of the president and Mrs. H. W. Duke, acting secretary, reported.

It was announced Mrs. Elva Duran was awarded the Garden plaque for the month of November.

Mrs. Joseph Scaffidi and Mrs. Henry Stiller, guests, were welcomed by the group. Members voted to have their annual Christmas luncheon at Diamondhead at 12:30 p.m. Friday, December 14.

Judging of Thanksgiving and Christmas arrangements was held. Winners were Mrs. William Richardson and Mrs. K. T. Breland. The door prize went to Mrs. G. T. Moreau.

Following the business session a social hour was held with Mrs. Frank Peterson as co-hostess.

JC Wives Plan Christmas Bazaar

The Bay St. Louis Jaycee Wives held a final meeting in preparation for the group's first Christmas Bazaar of handicraft items.

The bazaar will be held from 9 a.m. until 8 p.m. December 1 at the Jaycee Home on South Beach Blvd. Proceeds from the event will be used for the special youth center fund and civic projects for the coming year.

Santa Claus and his photographer will be special guests for the day.

Mrs. Mimi Rhodes, chairwoman of the group's safety program, reported that 455 children from six area schools viewed bicycle and walking safety films provided by the State Health and Education Department.

Plans were made for the Christmas Open House December 15 at the home of Mrs. Pat Seuzeneau. The open house is for the entertainment of husbands and guests.

Officers for 1974 will be elected at the December 10 meeting at the home of Mrs. Linda Burrage.

Echoes

OLG School News

Thanksgiving holidays at Our Lady of the Gulf School started at noon Wednesday. Classes will resume Monday, November 26.

Students of O.L.G. distributed Thanksgiving baskets in this area Tuesday.

O.L.G. Bears will play their last football game of the season at 1 p.m. Saturday, November 24, at St. Stanislaus Stadium. They will meet St. Clare's Warriors.

Mrs. Donald Carr reported there are still some reservations available for Our Lady of the Gulf P.T.O. sponsored bus trip to New Orleans November 29.

Cost of the trip and lunch at D.H. Holmes Lake Forest store will be $3. The bus will leave O.L.G. Church yard at 8:45 a.m. and return at approximately 5 p.m.

Reservations must be in by Monday night, November 26, by calling Mrs. Carr at 487-8492. Mrs. A.M. Thomas, 7-5880, by mailing the cost of the trip to O.L.G. School or having it at the rectory.

Tender Loving Care

Congratulations to Jeanette Moran who gave birth to an eight-pound, seven-ounce girl. Medical Records Librarian Charlotte Stanbro and Esther Briggs are spending new red uniforms which look quite becoming.

Holiday Season is fast approaching. Little to start planning for the Christmas pageant once again at the hospital.

OLG Parents Hear Reports

Our Lady of the Gulf P.T.O. met November 15 in the school cafeteria with David Treutel, president, conducting the business session. Rev. Daniel Gallagher, associate pastor, O.L.G. Church, offered the opening prayer.

Guest speakers, Mrs. Catherine Patterson, Billy Ivly and Dave Warnock, Utilization Specialists from Mississippi Educational T.V. office, Jackson, were introduced by Sister Patricia Sullivan, principal. They demonstrated the programs available on E.T.V. statewide network.

Sister Patricia noted children in Kindergarten, first and second grades and some third graders are being tested for visual perception under the direction of Dr. Max Edlington, Long Beach Optometrist.

Mr. Treutel appointed Mrs. Donald Carr chairman of a committee to explore the most practical ideas concerning school needs to be reported at the next meeting. She will be assisted by Mrs. James Thriftley, Mrs. Donald Ladner and James McCarthy.

A report was given on the annual Halloween party and Mr. Treutel thanked the workers and all who helped in any way to make the affair a success. A party for the workers, he added, will be given December 11; the time and place will be announced later.

Mrs. Santo Rosato invited all parents to visit the learning festival. Proceeds from the sale of arts and crafts at the festival will be used to replace broken phonographs and other educational equipment.

Harold Battalora, newly elected O.L.A. P.T.O. president, was introduced. Mrs. Michael Haas complimented and thanked Sister Patricia for her method of getting the school news to parents through a monthly calendar.

The attendance award went to Sister Marie Louise's third grade; the door prize to Mrs. Donald Strong and the 50-50 award to Mrs. Jane Noyes.

Following the closing prayer by Rev. Michael Tracey, associate pastor O.L.G. Church, a social hour was held with Mrs. Lawrence Hopkins and Mrs. James Thriftley as hostesses.

The next meeting will be January 17, 1974.

Christmas Party Plans Formed

Bay St. Louis Extension Homemakers Club met November 15 in the home of Mrs. Elenore Guidry with Miss Daisy Aura as co-hostess. Mrs. Sam Niglarzo, president, conducted the business session and Mrs. Samuel Necaise, presented the secretary's report.

A Christmas ornament fashioned of styrofoam and sequins was displayed by Mrs. Elda Duke.

Mrs. Norine Barnes Hancock County Extension Economist, met with the group and spoke on the success of the recent County Fair. Plans were made for the club's salad luncheon

December 7 and for the Christmas party December 20.

The door prize went to Mrs. Agnes Gryder.

The January meeting will be in the home of Mrs. Cleveland Wyatt with Mrs. Elda Duke as co-hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Watts have been guests of her parents Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Backlund and his father J. W. Watts. They are presently visiting in Washington and Connecticut and will return to spend Thanksgiving with their parents prior to returning to their home in Albuquerque, N.M.

New homes under construction in Diamondhead are those of Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Paul who are presently residing in the Condominiums, Mrs. Mabel Martin, Bay St. Louis and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Schull. Mr. and Mrs. Gene Kibling recently moved into their new home. Welcome to all of you.

A community Advisory Committee has been formed recently by interested property owners. Active members on the committee are George Sorensen, Thomas Shelton, Jim Smith, Paul Millam, Mr. Joe Salvatore, Mr. A. Little, and Mrs. William L. Temple. The purpose of the Advisory Committee is to provide a panel of homeowners who present resident opinions to the developers. As such they find themselves caught up in the excitement of Diamondhead's plans for future growth.

The Diamondhead Garden Club will host the next Ladies Social Luncheon December 7 beginning at 11 a.m. at the country club. A style show will be featured during the luncheon. Theme of the Show is "Glittering Array of Holiday Fashions", presented by Princess Shop, Bay St. Louis, Miss Jane Ann VanScoter will moderate the event. Please confirm your reservations through the Country Club office at an early date. Luncheon is $4.20. Members of Diamondhead and their guests are extended invitations. Individual table prizes will be awarded. For additional information, contact Mrs. George Sorensen, Garden Club president. Marcel Gouneau and Mrs. Carmen Cotter have been on the sick list.

Diamondhead Dealers Association held its convention in Diamondhead last week. Realtors representing three states attended.

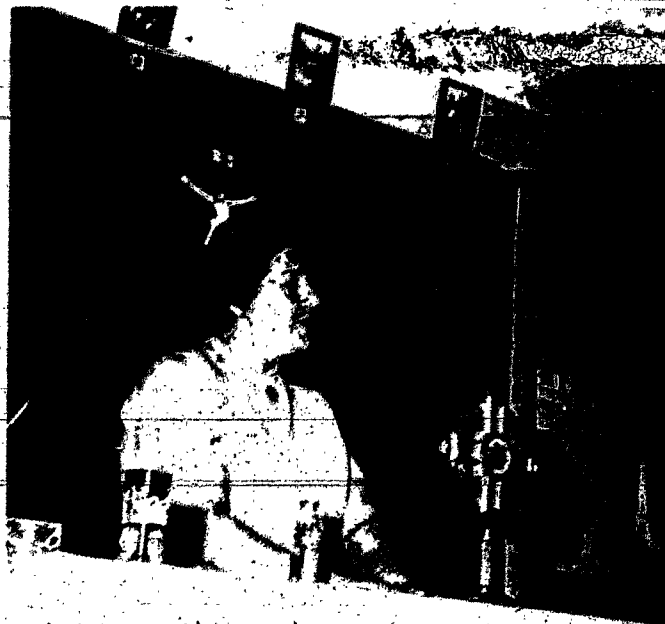

The Diamondhead Corporation sponsored PGA Club Professional Golf Championship was concluded recently at Pinehurst. Results were: The champion for 1973 is former touring professional Rives McBee. Rives' winning total was 282 for four rounds. The runner-up with 285 total was Stan Brion. Coming up next on the Pinehurst agenda is the World Open, also sponsored by Diamondhead Corporation. Results will be published in this column in the near future.

My telephone has been installed so residents can now get holiday social news to me. For your convenience the Sea Coast Echo may be purchased at Mr. Azulin's Standard Oil Station located at Diamondhead entrance or by phoning Bruce Messick for annual subscriptions at 452-9551.

Pass High Basketball Coach Gives Outlook For '73-'74 Season

by Ted Stechmann

Pass Christian High School head basketball coach Dale Moran stands ready to unveil the 1973-74 edition of his basketball Pirates this week in the Pirates' Den.

He is confident that the boys' varsity is very capable of bettering the 16-14 record they posted last season. Although the Pirates have only one 1972 starter, Larry Charlot, returning, Moran feels that returning letterman Keith Jacobs, Ricky Ladner and David Williams will more than compensate for the loss of last year's seniors.

The main reason for Moran's optimism is the average height of his starting five. "This is the tallest team we've had in quite some time," Moran said, "and we feel that we'll be able to work the ball into our big men somewhat better than we've been able to do in the past."

Other members of the Pirate squad include Daryl Ladner, Robin Malley, Mike Gibeault, Dana Chapman, Victor Swanier, Felix Dedeaux, Kevin Cahill, Parker Duplessis, Wayne Bradley and Mitch Garriga.

Height is also the dominating factor in the Pass High girls' team, according to Moran. The Pirates boast three girls who stand six feet tall or very close to it; an asset that Moran feels will enable them to control both the offensive and defensive boards.

The seven lettermen returning for this season are Connie Winstead, Judy Niolet, Sheryl Cook, Mary Hill, Ella Ladner, Susan Nocalise and Sarah Williams. The remaining squad members include Glenda Dubulsson, Kim Antoine, Patricia Biggs, Lena Dedeaux and Darlene Ladner.

The Pirate girls have consistently fielded strongly competitive teams, winning the Pascagoula River Conference title for six consecutive years and finishing second in the conference for the 1972-73 season with a 19-8 record.

In addition to 17 regular season games, the Pirates will

BWYC Backwash

by Ann Stieffell 467-6300

It was anything but cold at the first annual "COLD TURKEY REGATTA" at Pontchartrain Yacht Club November 17 and 18. The sun was generous with its warmth as at the Frostbite Regatta in early November, formerly the last of the GYA sailing events before the Sugar Bowl Regatta in late December.

In the ten boat open Flying Scot fleet, Harry Chapman with crew Amy Chapman won the first race, with Southern Yacht Club's Hjalmer Breit and crew Karen Baltar second. Breit reversed the order for the second race by his first place finish, while Chapman crossed the line second, with Elizabeth Chapman crewing. At the end of the first day's racing, Chapman and Breit were tied for first; Chris Stieffell with Cindy Stieffell crewing was third; Bobby Eagan with Mimi and Ellen Eagan crewing was in a three way tie for fourth place.

As the result of an early start in the final race Sunday morning, Chapman's position was lost as he ducked behind the entire fleet to re-start at a terrible disadvantage in the extreme light air. Breit lost no time in gaining an early lead which he held to the finish, to win the event with 29½ points. Chris Stieffell finished second in the final race, earning an overall second place with 24 points. Chapman's final standing was third with 21½ points; Eagan was fourth with 17.

The Sunfish Class was dominated by Buzzy Heausler who won all three races, for a total of 15 points. Leslie Weatherly of Gulfport Yacht Club was tied with Rod Stieffell for second at the end of the first day. The young GYC skipper sailed a beautiful race Sunday, staying ahead of Stieffell all the way, earning second overall with 10 points; Stieffell was third with nine. First place in the Laser Class went to Ed Cotter of Cooper River Yacht Club in

Jaycee Bowl To Match Top Rated Teams

The fourth annual Jaycee Football Bowl game this Saturday night will bring together two top-rated and powerful out-of-town teams on the Bay Hi Tiger Stadium field in Bay St. Louis.

For football fans the game promises an exciting clash between the Crystal Springs Tigers, rated sixth in the state in Class A teams, and the St. Paul's Wolves, third in their district and among the top 15 in-state Class AAA teams.

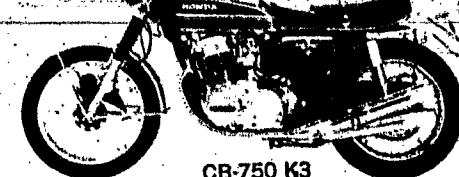

Pre-game activities will begin at 7 p.m. with the presentation of Jaycee Bowl Queen Debbie Favre and her court, Maids Nanette Mutter, Brenda Carver, Cindy Heffer and Pamela Green. Jaycee President Claude Switzer will do the honors.

St. Paul's band will present special half-time entertainment and another highlight will be award presentations to youthful winners of recent Punt, Pass and Kick local competitions.

Original concept of the Jaycee Bowl in Bay St. Louis was as a fund-raising activity to support the Jaycee scholarship program. Jaycees working in cooperation with all Hancock County area schools conceived the Bowl program to finance college scholarships for a student in each of the county's three high schools - Bay High, St. Stanislaus and Hancock North Central. Student recipients are chosen through recommendations by each high school principal, and are considered on the basis of need, scholastic standing and the individual's desire for higher education.

So far 9 students have received scholarship assistance to attend the college of their choice through the Jaycee program. Still in its infancy, the Bowl program has only been able to provide partial assistance to each recipient, but Jaycees' aim is to eventually reach a point of providing a full scholarship for each student.

ST. PAUL'S QUARTERBACKS Glen Fontain (15), Joe Simpson (14) and Paul Meyers (12) with coach Corky Jacobs. Simpson led the Wolves quarterback corps this season with 49 completed of 102 passes and eight touchdowns.

ST. PAUL'S Head Coach Corky Jacobs and his St. Paul Wolves will be providing the fireworks of a worthy opponent Friday night as the visiting team in the 4th annual Jaycee Bowl in Bay St. Louis.

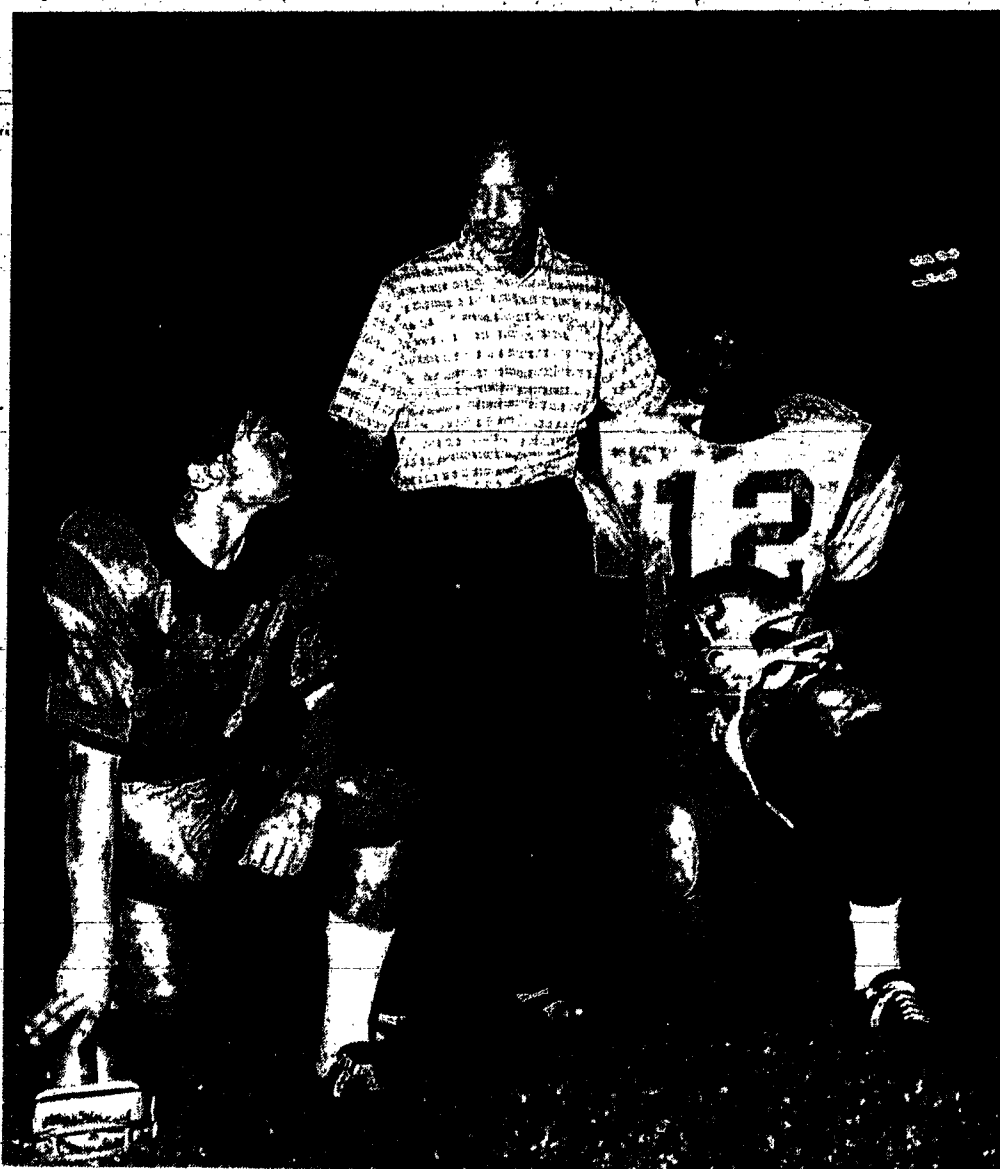

The Wolves will be representative of Class AAA football in Louisiana as they finished third in their district with a 7-3 record and are a member of the top 15 teams in the state in Class AAA ball. The Wolves' only two District losses were at the hands of Franklinton, number three in the state, and Amite, number seven in the State. Their only other loss was to Covington, a cross town rival and Quad A School. The Wolves were defeated in that game 10-6.

Corky Jacobs now in his sixth year with the Wolves has finished third in District AAA five times and has missed the State playoff by only one game on all five occasions.

The Wolves are led by quarterback Joe Simpson who has completed 49 of 102 passes for 790 yards and 8 T.D.'s. Mike Templett leads all rushers with 639 yards for an average of 5.8 yards per carry and Sam Johnson led all receivers with 17 receptions for 322 yards and 6 T.D.'s.

Offensively the wolves are averaging 251.3 yards per game. Rushing they have gained 1723 yards and passing they have picked up a total of 790. Defensively they have allowed their opponents only 57 yards passing and 104 yards rushing for a total of 161 yards per game. The tigers are averaging 23.8 points per game and have allowed their opponents only 10.6 points.

Jacobs announced that his team had taken a few days off but returned to practice this week. All of the players were glad to be going to the bowl game and were looking for a fine effort from our team.

CRYSTAL SPRINGS star quarterbacks Steve Lingle, left, and Jimmie Kennedy (12) are pictured with coach Terry Randolph. Randolph, a Bay St. Louis native and former Hancock North Central coach, brings sixth-in-state rated Tigers to the Jaycee Bowl game Saturday night. Lingle led the Tigers to a 14-5-1 record over the last two years and an 8-2 record for this year. Steve is the nephew of all-pro New York Jets linebacker Larry Grantham.
